1. No flying was done by elements of the 24th Air Army on 9 December 1950, presumably as a result of adverse weather conditions. The only units observed were a fighter regiment at Brandenburg and a fighter division headquarters at Peenemünde.
2. There was no flying on Sunday, 10 December, and very little on 11 December, when the weather was again unfavorable. Three ground-attack units were observed taking off and landing at Jüterbog; these engaged in bombing practice.
